THE HOLY TRINITY

by Andrei Rublev, early 15th century.
Tretyakov Gallery, Moscow

Andrei Rublev, honored as a saint in the Eastern Church, has in this masterpiece of Russian and world art portrayed the Trinity with utmost economy, his symbolism based on the visit of three angels to Abraham and Sarah at the oak of Mamre (Gen. 18:1). Their intent is redemptive: a sacrificial offering on the table, or rather altar, prefigures the Lamb of God slain for our salvation; the oak tree behind the Christ figure symbolizes his cross. The colors of their cloaks distinguish them as three, the Father to our left. The circular composition, their common transparent beauty, the blue of their garments, their accord, harmony, sympathy and peace manifest the unity of their eternal nature. Here is the Russian people's dream, then as well as now, of civil harmony and peace. The icon invites us to pray before it and to be drawn into the peace and unity of Trinitarian life. The recess in the front of the altar invites us perhaps to enter into the sacrifice as well. A copy of this icon adorns the entrance to Bruening Hall in our School of Business.

Icons feature prominently in the liturgy of the Eastern rites. The president of the University is bi-ritual, celebrating the liturgy in the rite of the Byzantine Catholic Church as well as in the Latin rite; hence, his special interest in icons.

ORDER OF EXERCISES

PROCESSIONAL

AMERICA, THE BEAUTIFUL

Led by Michael Thomas '92

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain!
America! America! God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears!
America! America! God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

AMERICAN VALUES AWARD

John F. and Rhodora Jacob Donahue

In His Sermon on the Mount, Jesus said to His disciples, "You are the salt of the earth, you are the light of the world, a city set on a hill cannot be hidden." He then bade His disciples to continue to be a good flavor for this world. He enjoined them to enlighten a world that threatens constantly to go dark.

Jesus today has made the same request of us, His disciples. He has spoken especially to Jack and Rhodora Donahue asking them to be the "salt of the earth, and the light of the world." They have responded by being both flavorers and enlighteners. They have given people the taste of traditional values in cultivating strong family life. They have been light to other families and have exemplified the beatitudes as they extend help to those in need. As St. Peter said in his first Epistle, "As generous distributors of God's manifold grace, you have put your gifts at the service of one another and to all, each in the measure that you have received."

Jack and Rhodora have been blessed by God in many ways. Most of all by a wonderful and loving family of thirteen children and fifty-seven grandchildren. Their youngest son, Greg, today follows in the footsteps of his sister, Susan, and brothers-in-law Thomas Freyvogel and Ronald Petnuch as a graduate of John Carroll University.

The Donahues also have been blessed by success and fortune in the world of business. Jack is the chief executive officer of Federated Investors, an investment management firm he co-founded in 1955, and which now is one of the largest in the United States. The Federated Investors Tower is a landmark of downtown Pittsburgh at Liberty Center.

But, without Rhodora, there is no Jack Donahue as we know him. She gives Jack the freedom to follow his dream. She provides unstinting support; she has been a steadfast partner and best friend in good times and bad for the past forty-five years. As wife and mother, she has created the bonds of a rich and vibrant family life. And she has given continuing meaning to the terms "neighbor" and "community" through volunteer activities cheerfully and unobtrusively rendered to the Ladies of Charity, the St. Lucy's Auxiliary, and the American Heart Association.

Jack, in turn, has shared the family's good fortune through his beneficence to the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh, its schools and charities, Duquesne University where he is a Trustee, the Gregorian University, and the Vatican. He has been invested as both a Knight of Malta and a Knight of St. Gregory.

To John Carroll University, the Donahues have been especially generous. They have assisted substantially in the endowing of a Visiting Jesuit Professorship which annually brings to the University an outstanding Jesuit scholar to serve as a member of the teaching faculty. For their exemplary service and generosity, John Carroll University is pleased to honor Jack and Rhodora Donahue with the 1992 presentation of its American Values Award.
