BEG Men Plan Stag Tonight

LTS to Domesticate . . .

Shakespearean Shrew Apr. 28, 29

By BILL SCHLAUDECKER

The second production of the year to be presented by the Little Theater Society will be Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," scheduled for presentation at 8:15 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Apr. 28 and 29, in the University Auditorium.

The role of Petruchio, the hero who tames the shrew, will be played by Michael Gallagher, and Eileen Casey, Evening Division student, will portray Katherine, the shrew. Other parts will be William Hussey as Lucentio, Richard Bauhof as Tranio, Evelyn Hehir as Bianca, and John Killeen as Sly, the comedian of the play.

Other members of the cast include Elmo Miller, Joseph Leahy, Van Hahn, Paul Jakubisen, James Leusch, Paul Mooney, Arthur Grumney, John Burke, Patrick Murphy, Roger Sargent, Thomas Maguire, Gregory Moffitt, John Church, Thomas Dugan, and Patrick Trese. Three Notre Dame College students, Mary Budd, Cecily Bostwick, and Marie Lorz, are also members of the cast.

JCU Strolling Players
The "Taming of the Shrew" has been staged in various ways, from faithful reproduction of the Elizabethan style to modern styling. This year's presentation by the LTS will not attempt any single historical manner, but in general will suggest a performance of strolling players in the hall of an English Renaissance mansion.

It is really a play within a play. The drunken Sly is picked up by the huntsman, a noble lord, and brought to the lord's house, where he is revived and persuaded that he himself is of noble blood. He receives appropriate entertainment which includes the performance of a play by a company of wandering actors. The play they perform includes Katherine, the shrew, Petruchio, the tamer, Bianca, and her suitors.

According to Mr. Leone J. Marinello, moderator of the LTS, Shakespeare's line of action in the play has been overshadowed by excessive scenery. For the production, the LTS did not want a cluttered stage; it is necessary to

On May 1, because May is the month consecrated to Our Lady, we shall start the practice in the University of silently reciting the Angelus. The Tower chimes are set to ring out the Angelus after the clock strikes twelve. All classes and other activities shall suspend during the chiming of the Angelus.

Pi Delt Frat Pledges Eight and Moderator

The John Carroll Chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalism fraternity, named eight undergraduate students and a faculty member to its pledge rolls at a meeting on Apr. 11.

Students included in the group are Peter Carlin, Albert Carroll, Henry Harter, Robert Huddleston, Jerry Intorcio, Donald Rourke, John Rusk, and Raymond Wiener. Mr. Richard Spath, moderator of the Carroll News and the Carillon, was also tendered membership to the collegiate fraternity.

No date has been scheduled for the formal induction of the pledges, but Lee Cirillo, president of the organization, said the group plans to convene for the initiation and banquet before semester examinations.

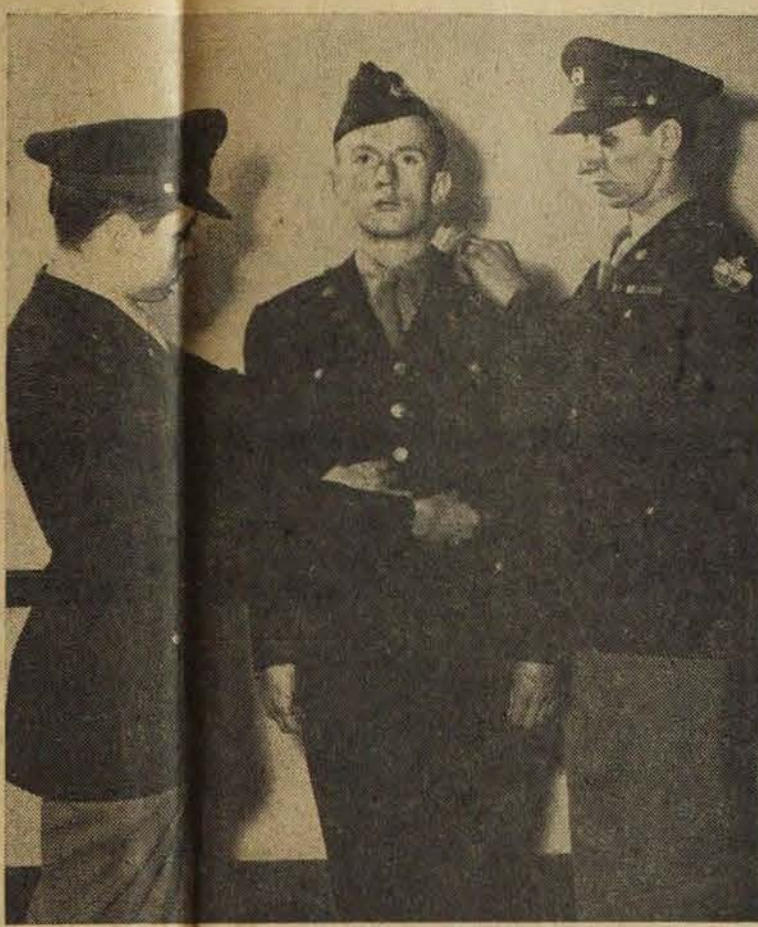

Vice-President William Switaj and Paul Mooney, members of the fraternity, have made tentative plans to attend the annual convention of the United States chapters of Pi Delta Epsilon at Virginia Polytechnic Institute on May 4, 5, and 6.

Seniors Plan Dinner Dance Here June 7

Carroll seniors anticipating commencement have begun mapping plans for graduation work activities, James Livingston, senior class proxy announced this week. The annual Senior Dinner Dance, a formal affair, has been scheduled for Thursday, June 7, at 7 p.m.

The Dinner Dance sponsored by the University as a farewell party will be held in John Carroll's Cafeteria and Auditorium.

All seniors expecting to graduate in June or August of this year are invited to attend these affairs, the Rev. Edward C. McCue, S.J., dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said at a meeting of the Senior Class on Apr. 13.

Students planning to attend either the dance or the picnic are requested to make reservations for the events before Friday, June 1, Livingston said. Reservations can be made with Miss Jane Thompson in Fr. McCue's office.

White dinner jackets for the men and evening gowns for the women will be in order for those attending the Dinner Dance, Fr. McCue added.

Angelus

On the first day of May, the students and faculty of this University will begin the daily recitation of the Angelus at noon. Taking up a practice that has gained tremendous popularity at Xavier University, the Carroll Union proposed and supported the Angelus crusade. It is an attempt to cooperate in at least a small way with the exhortations of Our Lady of Fatima. To see that it does not fail is the duty of every student.

There is indeed ample cause for the recitation of the Angelus. The list of world troubles need not be reviewed here, but the cause of peace can never be discussed too often. When the opportunity of being the first supporters of what can become a hallowed tradition is presented to us, we would be foolish to refuse. Self-consciousness should be no deterrent; the man next to you will feel just as self-conscious—for a while. After a few days we will all be proud to stand and say the Angelus.

Though what has been said here may sound pietistic, nevertheless it is the truth. The Angelus is one of the finest means of furthering Catholic hope for peace.

'Man of the Year'

Bob Beaudry was not a John Carroll man of one year or four years, but for all years, and definitely a shining example for any Carroll student to imitate.

The Sodality of Our Lady has recognized Beaudry as an outstanding representative of the qualities which make up true school spirit and wise leadership in dedicating to his memory the annual "Man of the Year" award.

The Carroll man so honored must be a constant and universal contributor to John Carroll and its progress. In his heart "The Man of the Year" must have the interest of the University family—administration, faculty, and students alike.

He must be cognizant of student shortcomings as well as those of the other members of the family and strive to correct all faults as their source. Finally, the man selected should have performed the responsibilities placed upon him to the best of his ability and proved loyal to God, country, and school.

WHAT IS YOUR OPINION OF THE COLLEGE STUDENT DEFERMENT PLAN AS IT NOW STANDS?

FRANCIS ZIDONIS, senior, Arts: The idea that one test can determine a student's potential value is somewhat absurd. If college students are to be privileged with deferments, they ought to be awarded on the strength of their scholastic standing.

THOMAS VICKERS, sophomore, BEG, I don't think this college deferment test is a good idea because it does not show conclusively whether the student has the capabilities to stay in college or not.

ROBERT M. KIRKHAM, sophomore, Arts: The deferment plan is not a fair evaluation of the ability of all men. Not only college students but capable men who cannot afford a college education should be eligible to take the exam.

CHARLES MARTIN, senior, Arts: As it now stands, the deferment plan is grossly unfair to the men not in school.

JOHN GARIN, sophomore, Science: Although I don't think the plan is sound in its principles, there are many college guys who will profit by it. I say let every one take the test and wait for developments.

WILLIAM RYAN, senior, Arts: There are bound to be injustices in a college deferment plan, but what law doesn't have its injustices.

Vets Differ on MacArthur

By KEVIN TOBIN

This week, in an attempt to gain a fresh slant on public opinion concerning the mushrooming Truman-MacArthur question, the Carroll News interviewed John Matera and Peter Cashy, two veterans now attending John Carroll who had served in the Far East under General

MacArthur's command. These men were asked to give their opinions of President Truman's highly debated removal of the General from command of the U. N. forces in Korea. Their answers, which are printed here, form reliable examples of the two opposing sides of the question.

Favors MacArthur

Matera, a senior who served in the U. S. occupational forces in Japan and who came into daily contact with MacArthur had this to say:

"The first time I saw MacArthur he came up to me and put his hand on my shoulder and said, 'You're new in the company, aren't you son?' I could have fallen through the ground because I felt so small standing next to that great man. He was 68 years old but he stood straight as a ramrod. His own powerful natural dignity stood out in every move he made. During the time I was in Japan, being near the general all the time, I grew, as did many men under him, to respect and admire him as only a great man can be respected and admired.

"He has a fine young son and a wonderful wife and he loves them both. He loved all his 'boys', as he called us, and he did his best to make sure we were treated right. Don't ask the Marines about MacArthur. They took a beating during the war like Marines are supposed to, but they blamed anything that went wrong on him because they had to blame someone.

Ask anyone who actually knew or came into contact with MacArthur; they'll tell you that he's just a guy, a real guy. And he's a great leader. Look what he has done in Japan. Those Japanese have become so westernized in five years under him that they're almost more American than the Americans themselves. They worship that guy; they think of him as some sort of god. Look at the terrific farewell they gave him the other day.

"How does one man become so respected and loved by a people that were six years ago his mortal enemies? I'll tell you. He is diligent and conscientious about everything he does. Every move he made during the war and since has been the product of careful thought and planning. Agrees With President

On the other side of the question, Peter Cashy, a senior, who served from '44 to '46 in the Pacific area, defended President Truman's actions. He said:

"In as much as MacArthur is, despite his rank, primarily a soldier, Truman was right in relieving him of his command for disobeying presidential orders by criticizing the Far Eastern policy of the United Nations.

"This nation is first and foremost a nation of civilians, and if the civilians are to hold sway over the possibility of any military leader becoming too powerful, such action as that of Truman must remain possible. This will serve as a strong example to any general who begins to overstep the limits of his authority in the future.

"Because of MacArthur's immense personality and popularity, Truman has spared him the disgrace of a court-martial. Any lesser officer under the same circumstances would undoubtedly have been ousted from the service on the charge of violating the Articles of War.

Sites Truman's Reason

"As President Truman said, at a time like this the popularity of no one individual can be allowed to stand in the way of the unity of thought and action which we need to prevent a third world war.

"After all, this thing is a lot bigger than just a political argument between the Democrats and the Republicans, which, disgusting as it seems, it is fast becoming. The United Nations is our only hope of preventing a third world war.

"We can't string along with it only long as we agree with its decisions. We have to go all out and stick to its every ruling and policy. No one man, however admired, should be allowed to endanger the power of the United Nations and the hope that people must hold in it."

Carroll Songsters Show Brilliance in 61st Concert

Thumbing its collective nose at superstition, the John Carroll University Glee Club presented on Friday, the Thirtieth of April, their sixty-first annual concert in Severance Hall.

The evening was filled with the vigorous voices of 60 Carroll students who displayed a spirit of vocal enthusiasm as only a group of college men who love to sing can.

In the selections sung by the Glee Club, variety and polish were the keywords. In "Dona Nobis Pacem," the singers made the fugue a soothing harmony with an authentic sacred spirit.

"The Bells of Shandon" showed a pleasingly meticulous use of inflection while "Holy Lord of All," a Welsh hymn, also displayed the club's fine shading technique.

For the major musical work of the evening, Dr. Louis L. Balogh, club director, conducted the Cleveland Heights High Little Symphony, the Notre Dame College Chorus, and the Carroll organizations in the first performance of "Vanitas Vanitatum," a cantata composed by Dr. Balogh himself.

The opus showed an intensity which was both vibrant and virile. The lyrics, taken from a poem by William Makepeace Thackeray, gave the piece a poetry all its own. Alternating between chorus and orchestra, the musical action never dragged and had variety in delineation, polyphony, and innovation.

Much of the success of the premiere must be attributed to the outstanding high school musicians who provided the instrumental basis of "Vanitas." The majestic finesse given the solemn passages and the rhapsodic sheen given the lighter portions showed an adeptness rarely found in such a group.

John Huddleston, senior in the College of Arts and Sciences and intended baritone soloist, was involved in an accident and unable to attend the concert. His chant was sung by Sophomore Robert Curry, an able understudy who performed magnificently.

Combined, the singers from Notre Dame and Carroll crowned the cantata with artistry and verve. They concluded the program with a beautifully stirring rendition of "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "Sons of Carroll," Maureen McAllely, the guest soloist, sang with an extraordinary soprano that soared with rich projection while retaining a vivacious warmth throughout. Her interpretation of Bach-Gounod's "Ave Maria," with Glee Club background arranged by Dr. Balogh, possessed fervid tenderness. Miss McAllely's "Jewel Song" from "Faust" and "Ariette des Aennchen," by Weber, showed smoothness and taste coupled with a gay sophistication.

Piano solos were executed by William Weaver, a sophomore in the Arts school, who handled Liszt's "Etude in D flat" and "Ritual Fire Dance" by De Falla, with quality and precision. His attacks were well-defined and dynamics diversified.

Faculty Marksmen Form Team

The crack of a rifle is now sweet music to the ears of 31 members of the John Carroll faculty; the kicks of .22 caliber guns against their shoulders are touches of heaven; the pungent odor of burnt powder delights their nasal senses; the feel of a full clip of ammunition brings satisfaction to their souls. The faculty rifle team of John Carroll University, officially the University Rifle and Pistol Club, has at last come of age!

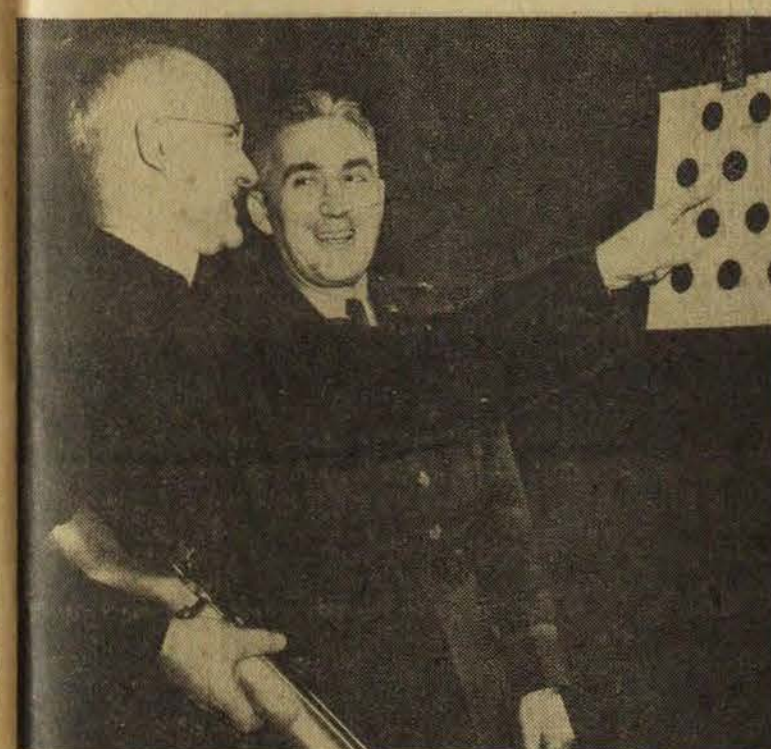

Two days ago, Apr. 18, the Rev. Hugh B. Rodman, S.J., secretary of the club, received a charter from the National Rifle Association of America. The charter establishes the faculty team as a Class A Club in the NRA.

With their status now determined, the club can complete its organization and ascertain who will constitute the teams for competitive firing. Up to the present time, the club has been unable to participate in any competitive matches, for they do not have a sufficient number of rifles or sufficient ammunition. In this regard, Fr. Rodman has applied to the Director of Civil Marksmanship for .22 caliber rifles and 20,000 rounds of ammunition.

High Scores Recorded

Of the scores posted so far in the practice shooting, Dr. W. J. Vogt and Mr. H. C. Nash have recorded the highest totals. Wednesday and Thursday of this week club members fired for record. Weekly meetings have been held in conjunction with the actual firing periods.

Directing the fire of the professors are the Rev. Frederick E.

POINTING TO THE results of his marksmanship, the Very Rev. Frederick E. Welfle, S.J., University President, seems justly proud while Lt. Col. Howard I. Schmitt beams his approval.

Welfle, S.J., president, Mr. Fritz W. Graff, vice-president, Fr. Rodman, secretary, Dr. John M. Gersting, treasurer, and Mr. Nash, chief instructor. These officers rule the organization of keen-eyed and steady-nerved faculty marksmen who compose the ranks of the club.

Completing the roster of sharpshooters are: Mr. J. W. Albertstadt, Mr. J. Bradley, S.J., Mr. A. A. Bungart, Mr. B. R. Campbell,

Lt. Col. E. P. Courson, Mr. E. J. Eggl, Mr. E. F. Gilchrist, Dr. G. E. Grauel, Lt. J. Houtz, Mr. J. L. Hunter, Mr. B. S. Jablonski, Mr. A. D. Lucian, Bro. V. Luterick, S. J., Dr. D. B. MacEachen, Bro. F. Malek, S.J., Mr. T. Martin, Mr. E. R. Mittinger, Mr. E. G. Oberst, Mr. J. J. Peirolo, Lt. Col. H. I. Schmitt, Mr. J. A. Seliskar, Maj. L. C. Spinney, Dr. E. B. Thomas, Mr. R. F. Jest About Anything

By LEE CIRILLO

T'WAS THE magical eve of the Senior Prom. The night when everyone floats in an aura of frivolity in the garb of the cultured cognoscenti (the jolly set), even the lad who sits next to you in history: the one who wears the dungarees.

Calescent winds whispered across the Ballroom of the Hotel Allerton; and mad music caught up the souls of tranquil scholars. Not a person there looked like he was thinking of elliptical syllogisms or bi-partisan foreign policy. After ten minutes my tux shirt bore startling resemblance to a soufflé of Spanish Seaweed.

Bewitchingly, Dream Girl looked in my direction, mainly because a handsome football player was standing right behind me. I was relieved—she had been very pensive ever since the waiter stuck her with the check for the last round.

The Light Fantastic . . .

She waved her rope of orchids towards the dance floor. I nodded timidly, and she pushed me into the teeming masses. First we danced the Highland Schottische; then we whirled through a sizzling Samba, blasted some Boogie-Woogie, and by eleven o'clock I was waltzing with my darling to the Tennessee Waltz.

Ending that poignant melody with a flair, the band aroused the Ginger Rogers in Dream Girl and she spun me off the floor. The last thing I can remember is striking my head on the floral arch; the heat waves shimmered across the marble floor and everything seemed to be very peaceful . . .

Dream Girl came through with the spirit of the true bon vivant. Quickly breaking a twig of daffodils from the arch, she placed the bough in my hands and folded them across my chest. Before she departed in the direction of the football player, she wrote a friendly note on my chest with her lipstick. "Get home early, honey," she wrote. "I took your wallet for safekeeping."

Blood, Sweat, and Beers

Clever Sil Cornachione was the only promenade with that cool, refreshed look. He starched the front of his sweatshirt, painted onyx studs on it, and looked better at 1 a.m. than most of us did at 9 p.m.

When the committee announced that all the Seniors could not be introduced in the traditional style, one greying veteran of six Senior Proms shed a few tears on the shoulder of his sympathetic wife. "Don't fret, Mort," she whispered, "Your wheelchair wouldn't fit under the arch anyway."

We all looked like dying debutantes after the Big Brawl, but each of the smiling faces we saw seemed to indicate that this year's prom was the best ever. Thank you, Willy Swital and Co., for a real wing-ding.

This Here Sentence Is Weak

April in Cleveland seems to be dedicated to wintry weather and thesis tribulations. One of the elect became a trifle wary as he saw his noble friends return from the Battle of the Split Infinitive. His best friend's thesis had so many red lines on it, it looked like a diagram of the arterial system of an elephant.

The advisor of this particular lad happened to be a hunting devotee. When the scholarly researcher finally delivered the masterpiece for inspection, it just happened to be wrapped around a fine, new shotgun. "Here, sir," said the scamp, "is something for you to wile away your time when you glance over my thesis."

Carroll Union Digest

By JERRY INTORCIO

Union Secretary John Beringer reports that the Angelus Plan has met with the approval of the Very Rev. Frederick E. Welfle, S.J., John Carroll University President. In view of the President's sanction, therefore, Carrollites will start the practice of silently reciting the Angelus on Tuesday, May 1.

At this week's meeting, Beringer presented an outline of the steps to be taken by the Angelus committee to help stimulate student-faculty cooperation in this religious activity. A letter will be sent to every member of the faculty, urging his concurrence in the plan. Some 2500 copies of Angelus prayers are being printed for general distribution among the student body, and will be made available to the students at the Sacred Heart statue outside the Auditorium, and at other places in school. Secretary Beringer and his staff are to be commended for their positive action in the Angelus crusade.

Nine Union members will receive awards at the May 18 convocation for their participation in the student governing body. The representatives to be cited for serving four semesters in the Union are John Huddleston, William Eline, James Livingston, Richard McCaffrey, William Swital, Lawrence Badar, Sal Jeffries, James Hagerty, and James Fitzgerald.

Trophy committee chairman Henry Harter reported that the John D. Connors Memorial Trophy—for the outstanding freshman football player—was last engraved in 1947 when Rudy Schaffer captured the award. The names of Burrell Shields, John Zanetti, and John Demas, award recipients of the last three years, have not as yet been inscribed.

The 1948 Great Lakes Bowl Trophy, given to Carroll for its victory over Canisius, will have its handles replaced shortly, Harter said.

Carroll's Blue Streaks to Make Spring Bid at Shaw, Apr. 27

Jerry Miller's Smorgasport

SPRING COMETH

With the weather finally emerging from the deep freeze of a typical Cleveland Spring, the arrangements for the Annual Intra-Squad football game are being pushed on a "Barnum and Bailey" scale.

Some 1,100 spectators gave enthusiastic support to last year's unique venture, when the intra-squad game succumbed to modern promotional ethics and went "off-campus," for the first time in the school's history.

It seems that tradition was established, for this year the game will do an encore at Shaw Stadium next Friday at 8:00 p.m.

It is unfortunate that the team hasn't had all the practice that good conditioning requires, but Carroll officials had to accept the 27th of April because the Shaw Stadium turf will be reseeded the following week in order to provide a cushioning turf for the Streaks' fall opponents.

Last year less than half of the student body previewed the '50 grid squad, but those who attended agreed that it was the closest thing to a real game for entertainment.

They also were unanimous in agreeing that a spring football tilt provides opportunity for a unique form of diversion from the usual spring date affairs.

But stag or otherwise, be there.

This idea probably comes just in time to be forgotten by next year, since it is late to take action now, but it might be a good idea to feature a "Spring Football Queen" as part of the promotion for the annual squad game.

The impressive half-time crowning of an equally impressive queen would lend a certain measure of aesthetic relief to the game.

SCHEDULITIS

During the past week, the athletic department contacted 50 more universities in a practically vain attempt to complete their '51 grid sked. The net results was the signing of St. Francis for Sept. 22, as reviewed elsewhere on this page.

There is a reason for this adverse sentiment—Carroll is tough. But basically that's not the main problem.

Carroll's "schedulingitis" would disappear if they could guarantee the visiting team more than the cost of their cleaning bill. Most schools will overlook a little prestige punishment if you don't abuse them financially.

The only hope Carroll has of improving the quality of their schedule, and subsequently attracting the best talent, is to attract near-capacity crowds with monotonous regularity.

In an effort to create a Carroll following, a group of alumni and friends met last night at Carroll to formulate promotion plans for the Quantic Marines game at the Stadium next Oct. 26th.

A group of 12 committees were formed under the leadership of Al Burens, the alumnus who did such an outstanding job on the Syracuse game of recent tradition.

The committees have dedicated themselves to the task of selling the Quantic game to the public and assembling the biggest collegiate football crowd in Carroll's and Cleveland's history. That would be over 17,000.

In order to stimulate student support, Joe Lynch's Boosters Club has undertaken an ambitious plan also.

In about two weeks, each member of the student body will be contacted via telephone or in person by their fellow students in order to get their endorsement of an athletic fee similar to last year's football package deal. The cost of the fee book, which will include tickets to all football and basketball games, has been estimated at under ten dollars. The tickets will be transferable and a companion ticket will also be available.

It must be remembered, however, that this athletic plan is only an attempt to stimulate student interest and attendance at the games and that any compulsory fee rests entirely with the student's representatives in the Carroll Union.

But compulsory or not, the student body is the main source of support for their team and something must be done to encourage that support if Carroll is to compete with the avowed intentions of the other Cleveland colleges.

INTRA-MURAL SPLASH PARTY

Athletic Director Gene Oberst, who begins his sixteenth and perhaps busiest year of association with Carroll athletics Monday, should also be congratulated for his persistent efforts to set-up an intra-mural softball schedule despite the curious antics of the atmosphere.

Gene reports that ten teams have finally submitted rosters and that play will begin next Wednesday. Any additional entries must be submitted by tonight in order that Mr. Oberst can arrange a schedule over the weekend. This completed sked will be posted Monday outside of the snack bar.

Mr. Oberst also reports that the much-discussed Cleveland weather is another one of the reasons why baseball as a sport has never caught on at Carroll.

The stuff may bring the May flowers, but it sure plays havoc with schedules.

I'll be Anthesterion you!!

St. Francis Contracts to Oppose Grid Team

Director of Athletics Eugene G. Oberst announced the signing Wednesday, Apr. 18, of a football agreement between John Carroll and St. Francis College of Loretto, Pa.

The game, which is to be played Saturday, Sept. 22, at Shaw Stadium, will be the Streaks' '51 opener.

Basia for the game is a one-year unwritten agreement which is still indefinite as to exact date, depending upon the date Shaw Stadium is open. In case Shaw is not available for the night of Sept. 22, the game will be played Thursday, Sept. 20, at Shaw.

Coach for the Red Flashes of Loretto is Vincent (Vince) Davis, a 1935 graduate of Notre Dame University.

Last Met in '39

The last meeting between the Streaks and Flashes occurred in 1939, when the Clevelanders topped the Keystoneers 13-2.

How to Score a Golf Match

By TOM KRAUSE

Most Carroll students have played some kind of golf at one time or another, but there are few who understand the system of scoring matches between two collegiate golf teams.

Team scoring is actually very simple. It's based on the same principle known in individual play, the number of strokes required to get the unpredictable ball into the elusive cup.

There are four players on each team. Each member plays eighteen holes against an individual opponent and has a chance to win a total of three points for his team.

One point is awarded for the low score on each nine holes and the third point goes to the player who has the lowest score for the eighteen hole total.

As an example, if Carroll lettermen Bob Revello and Dick Kleshinski played each other and Bob shot a 37-37 while Dick carded a 36-39, Dick would get a point for winning the first nine holes, while Bob would take two points, one for winning the second nine and one for having the low score on the eighteen hole total.

In case of ties, each player gets 1/2 point each, so the two players could easily split the three points in a match.

In the competition called best-ball, two men from each school play as a team. While both play each hole, only the lowest score of the two players is counted at each hole. In this way, one player could blow up and fire at eight or nine but his teammate could still win the hole for them by shooting a three or a four. In this type of play, a good golfer can win the match without being hindered by a wild-shooting teammate.

A school of 800 students, St. Francis is a member of the Tri-State Conference. Win-loss record for the Pennsylvanians in the '50-'51 season was 5-5. Their major opponents were Louisville (Ky.), and Niagara (N.Y.).

The Davis-coached eleven replaces Gannon College (Erie, Pennsylvania) on the Blue Streak '51 schedule. The Gannon Knights recently announced the elimination of varsity football for duration of the present world crisis, necessitating the filling of the Sept. 29 date, held by them.

Meet Anamosa's Ament

Carroll's track squad will again be strongly represented in the field meets this year, and one reason for Coach Gene Oberst's confidence in this matter is a big, ruddy-faced senior named Ernie Ament.

The likeable, good-natured, Ament is a student with a two-faceted study of Greek scholarship. Ernie is as outstanding in the study of the ancient language as he is in the guise of a classical Greek athlete, as he puts the shot for the Carroll cinder squad.

Upon graduation, he hopes to obtain a Doctor's degree in Greek from the Catholic University of America at Washington, D.C.

The two-time letter winner will again put the shot and heave the discus for the Streak speedsters. In nine meets last season, Ernie placed first seven times in the shot put, and on four occasions finished first in the discus events.

He topped off an outstanding season in the 1950 City Championship Track Meet at Baldwin-Wallace, by bettering his own school record with a shotput heave of 45 ft. 6 in.

Spring Squad Fracas Opens Path for Frosh Grid Hopefuls

By HANK HARTER, Ass't Sports Editor

One week from tonight, Apr. 27, the annual intra-squad game will be played at Shaw High Stadium. Time set for the kickoff is 8:15 p.m. Friday night.

Ticket prices for the event, which is being held off-campus for the second consecutive year, are 50 cents for students, while others may purchase ducats for the sum of $1. Tickets are now on sale in the University Ticket Office, or they may be purchased at the gate on game night.

The game will officially terminate spring practice for Blue Streak stalwarts. Although squad selections have not yet been made, this will take place sometime during the coming week. The total number of men donning the Blue or White uniform for the game will be limited to 56 aspirants.

Nine Lettermen Missing

Missing from the lineup for the first time in four long years will be the following graduating grid-ders: Carl Taseff, Don Shula, Rudy Schaffer, and Sil Cornachione, Bob Zupke, Al Aurilio, Bill Eline, Sig Holowenko, Ed Kubancik, and Bill Nowaskey.

Halfback Jim Porter, tackle Vince Taddeo, and end Dave Dvorak are sure prospects for varsity workhorses during the coming season, but their talents will not be on parade before followers of Blue Streak grid fortunes during the coming historic hassle. Porter and Taddeo are both injured, while Dvorak is working.

This year will mark the first time in four years that members of the two squads will be fighting for active berths on the varsity.

Frosh Enter Competition

Main reason for the increased competition among team members is the reinstallation of the freshman eligibility rule, whereby all freshmen become eligible for competition in varsity sports during the coming season.

As in past years, both squads will work from the Elsie-T-formation, with both groups being evenly matched in weight and experience.

The presence of former St. Louis University grid-ders and players from various other campuses will provide cleated maturity found lacking among White squads of former occasions.

Blue Streaks Shine

Outstanding linemen during recent practice sessions have been big John Zanetti, former Cleveland Heights High performer, and Tony Colonna, talented T-tackle. Showing strong backfield capabilities during recent weeks has been Paul Schmidt, versatile fullback, whose speedy runs bode good for fall showings.

Cross country lettermen Bill Kustes, Mike Kondik, Chuck Patterson, and Bill Colmer are expected to augment the Streaks in the distance events.

Middle-distance newcomers to the squad include Jim Coymns, Ray Williams, and Don Fee.

Stephen Strauch and Donald Puzinski, co-chairmen of the decorations committee, promise plenty of flowers and a fluorescent effect obtained by means of black lights. Strauch designed the Scientific Academy's float which captured first place honors in the Mardi Gras at Carroll. Other committee members are Elden Lucas, Victor Todia, and Paul Sindelar.

Gillen Is Chairman

Sodality Treasurer James Gillen is dance chairman. Jack Posch is handling publicity arrangements, and Bud Picard and Paul Sindelar are promoting ticket sales.

Group Visits JCU Campus

Approximately 60 members of the International Students Group of the Council on World Affairs will be entertained by the Carroll Union, Sunday, Apr. 29.

Following an afternoon dance, the group will tour the campus, paying special attention to the Guidance Center, the Military Science Building, and the Seismology Observatory.

The group will then adjourn to the University Cafeteria for a buffet supper. After dining they will see the Little Theater Society presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew" in the University Auditorium.

James Jansen serves as committee chairman for the affair. Assisting Jansen are Richard Cusick, Arthur Grumney, and Charles Pfeiffer.

Students from all over the world are included in the membership of the group which is a branch of the Council on World Affairs.

Ohio Profs Visit

John Carroll University will host a meeting of the Ohio Conference of the American Association of University Professors on Saturday, Apr. 28.

Inductees, formally cloaked in gowns and mortarboards, will hear John Huddleston, fraternity president, and Badar, explain the aims and goals of Alpha Sigma Nu. Representatives of the society have invited the Very Rev. Frederick E. Welfle, S.J., University President, to attend the banquet and ceremonies which will begin at 3 p.m.

Preceding the initiation, at special meeting, will be the election of officers for the coming school year. The only two official positions of the organization are those of the president and secretary.

New members of the Alpha Sigma Nu, selected on the basis of loyalty, service, and scholarship include two graduate students and seven undergraduate students. Edward Carome and Harold Nash were the men selected from Carroll's graduate division.

Undergraduate members include George Englehart, Joseph Lynch, Jerome Miller, Paul Mooney, Richard Musil, Paul Stitzel, and Patrick Trese.

Frosh Semi-Formal Scheduled May 18

Dancing to the music of Vic Stuart will be the feature of the annual Freshman Dance to be held at the Lake Shore Country Club, Friday, May 18, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The affair is semi-formal and is open to all Carroll students. Bids are now being sold for $3.20.

John O'Donnell is committee chairman. Assisting him are Daniel Boland, John Carson, Dominic Lo Galbo, David Schuler, and Charles D'Ambrosio.

Young Prints Article

Mr. William Young, counselor in the University's Guidance Center, has written an article which appears in the March issue of the magazine, Needle. The article, "Employment Frustration," deals with the advantages of vocational counseling.

THE YOUNG MAN WITH THE HORN, Ray Anthony leads his orchestra in an impromptu "parade" at the Senior Prom. The gala event drew five hundred couples, the largest attendance in history.

Army Officials to Inspect ROTC Unit

Five officials from the Second Army Area will visit the John Carroll campus for an annual federal inspection of the University's Department of Military Science on May 16.

Purpose of the inspection is to test the achievements made by the cadre during the school year. During the day-long inspection, classroom work will be inspected, and the entire ROTC regiment will be reviewed on the green in front of the University.

The Cleveland chapter of the National Defense Transportation Association will award the outstanding senior cadet with a medal of achievement during the review. Mr. Arthur Genet, Vice-President of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, will make the presentation.

Officers in the Department of Military Science will judge the cadets on the basis of scholastic and military ability and work in campus activities.

Carillon Off Press by Middle of May

The 1951 edition of the Carillon, with its "navy blue and silver" color scheme, is scheduled to roll off the press by the middle of May. About five hundred copies have been ordered to date, John Rusk, business manager, said.

Sports and other extracurricular activities are being featured in this year's annual, with the emphasis on pictures. Since the Carillon is intended to be a book of memories of work and play at Carroll, the staff has attempted to make these memories more vivid with an abundance of photographs, Rusk added.

News Co-Editors To Be Delegates at Kent Meeting

Three Carroll students will represent John Carroll at the 25th annual convention of the Ohio College Newspaper Association at Kent State University, May 4 and 5.

Representing the Carroll News will be Co-Editors John Nassif and Lee Cirillo and Assistant Sports Editor Henry Harter.

Awarding of the prize winners in the annual OCNA newspaper competition will take place at the banquet Saturday, May 5. Last year the Carroll News, edited by James K. Morrow, copped three awards in the competition: the Best Bi-Weekly in Ohio, the Best Cartoon by Edward Kelly, and an honorable mention in the Best Feature Story contest by Norman Mlachak.

Record Crowd at 28th Senior Prom

Approximately 500 couples attended the 28th Annual Senior Promenade at the main ballroom of the Hotel Allerton, Saturday, Apr. 7, William Switaj, prom chairman, reported.

Carroll students and their dates danced to the music of Cleveland Ray Anthony's nationally popular orchestra but paused briefly at 10:30 for coronation ceremonies.

Prom King James Fitzgerald's date, Miss Carol Harmon, Notre Dame College freshman, was crowned Queen of the University's leading social event by honorary Prom King Richard Cusick.

The grand march, which included the introduction of Senior Class members and their dates, was interrupted because of a scheduled broadcast over radio station WERE. Bill Randall, Cleveland disc jockey, emceed the program which enabled radio fans to participate in the Carroll Prom and hear the music of Ray Anthony's orchestra.

"The number of seniors present was very gratifying," Switaj said. "I would estimate that half of the crowd were seniors—which is certainly the biggest turnout a Senior Class has had in the University's history."

"I would like to thank the Prom Committee for doing a wonderful job—for all their time and effort and for helping to promote a grand affair," Switaj added.

Committee members were John Beringer, Richard Cusick, Charles D'Ambrosio, William Eline, Sal Jeffries, James Livingston, Robert McCabe, and Patrick Molohan.

NSA Ohio Region Convenes at Carroll

Delegates from 13 schools in the Ohio Region of the National Students Association will convene at John Carroll University on May 5 and 6.

The Rev. Edward C. McCue, S.J., dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will address the group. All Carroll students are invited to attend the meetings.

Work Sung by JCU Glee Club

For the sixty-first time, the John Carroll University Glee Club presented its annual concert at Severance Hall on Friday, Apr. 13, at 8:30 p.m.

With the 60 voices of the Carroll contingent, plus the 46 voices of the Notre Dame College Chorus and 47 musicians of the Cleveland Heights Little Symphony, "Vanitas Vanitatum," the cantata of Dr. Louis L. Balogh, director, was the major work of the evening.

Following the composition were "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "Sons of Carroll," the Carroll Alma Mater with an orchestration written this year by Dr. Balogh. The song was sung by the entire audience at the conclusion of the concert.

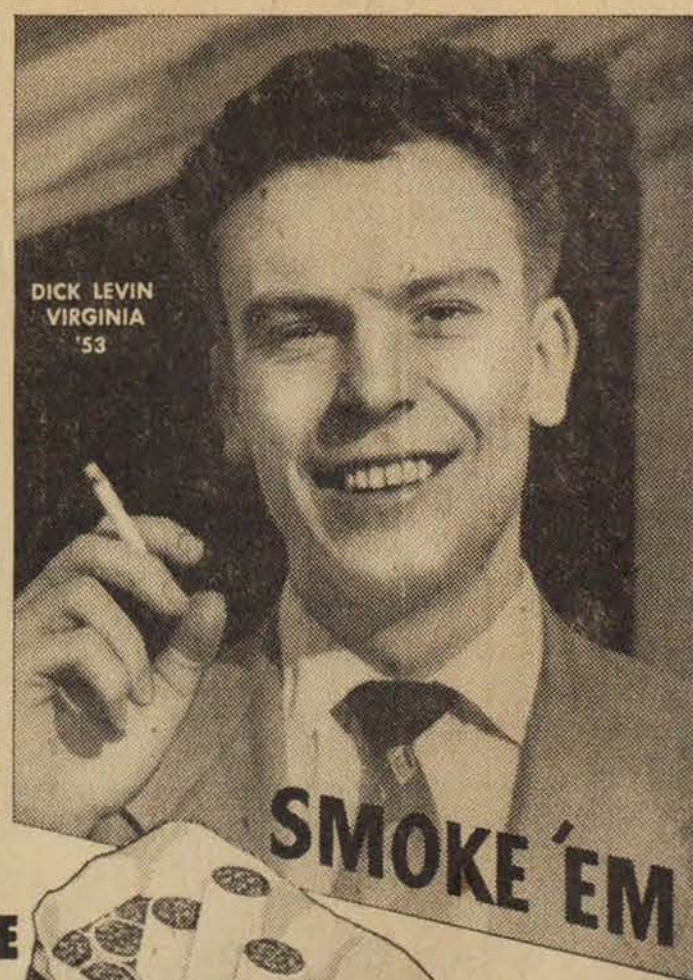

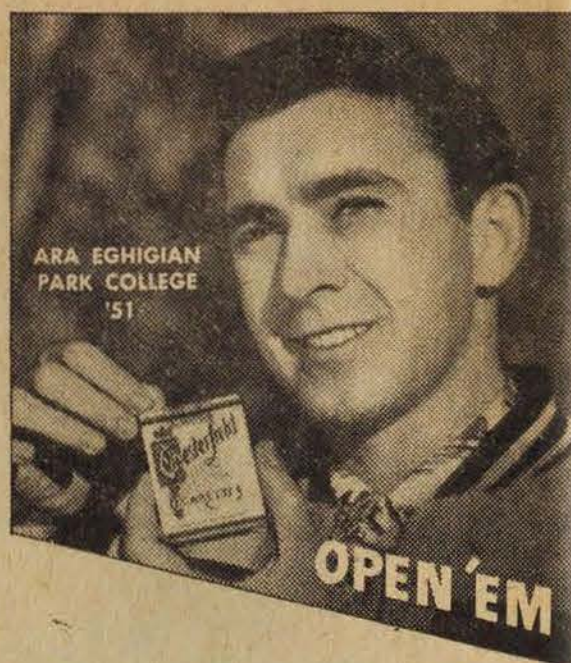

The hall, filled with approximately 800 music lovers, was filled with the melodies of "Holy Lord of All," "The Bells of Shandon," "Pop Goes the Weasel," and "Dona Nobis Pacem," as rendered by the men in the Glee Club.

William Weaver, sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences, presented three piano pieces while Maureen McAlley, Cleveland soprano, sang three numbers plus encore.

Fr. Carron at NVGA

The Rev. Lionel V. Carron, S.J., Vocational Service Director, attended the annual meeting of the National Vocational Guidance Association held in Chicago, Mar. 26 to Mar. 29.
