Last Semester

Joseph Bradley-Waiwood

This is my last semester,
At John Carroll University.
It makes me think back,
On all the things I did,
The past four years.
I started as a bright-eyed freshman,
Ready to take on business.
Long nights studying in the library,
Were followed by long Thursday nights
At Panini's Bar and Grill.
Sophomore year was off and running,
With accounting classes killing
My so stellar 3.8 GPA.
Then the nasty covid hit,
Sending us all home to "learn" online.
Junior year was back to being online,
Missing what JCU feels like in Fall.
I made it to the library a few times,
But really just to see the remodel.
As Junior year classes were cake.
Finally comes the beloved Senior year.
Realizing that time flies,
When all you do is have fun.
College will be so sadly missed.
But hopefully this new chapter in my life,
Will bring the same energy,
That I already love.
