SAGA food service makes second appearance

by Judy Pentz

The SAGA food service has been reinstated and there have already been many changes in the appearance of the cafeteria as well as in the quality of the food.

Doug Cottron, food service director for SAGA, said he was glad to be back, having worked here for SAGA in 1969. Better service through training will occur with time and the food service will be run like a business with the assistance of Bob Butler, food survival kits are small but effective ways to help SAGA save money which adds up to better food quality for the student boarder.

Cottron and Butler are planning to hold a major special every month of the school year and are open to suggestions from the student body. At this time the majority of the food is made from scratch so students are asked to bear with the food service until they find the best re-

Four new department chairmen appointed

by John Russell

Four new department chairmen and one acting chairman have recently been appointed, reports Dr. Arthur Noetzel, Academic Vice President

Dr. Robert Sullens, a member of the accounting staff since 1956, is succeeding Vincent Panichi as Accounting Department chairman. Pa-nichi has been a member of the department since 1959.

Dr. Richard W. Clancey is succeeding Joseph Cotter as chairman of the English department. Clancey, who re-ceived his baccalaureate here, has been a member of the department since 1965. Cotter began instructing here in 1947

Dr. Elizabeth Swenson has been named to succeed Dr. Charles D. Ferraro as chairperson of the psychology department. Ferraro is retiring after twenty-nine years at Carroll

Mr. Ron Zwierlein has been named athletic director and chairman of the physical education department. A member of the department since 1975, Zwierlein will continue as swimming and diving coach.

Mr. John Sweeney has been named acting chairman of the economics department. Former chairman Dr. Frank Navratil accepted a position on the National Credit Administration in Washington. D.C.

Dorm constructed ahead of schedule fifth student dormitory on campus is nearing completion and will be dedicated on Sunday, October 22, during Par-ent's Weekend. A name for the dormitory has not been selected. However, University trustees may decide later to name the building in memory or in honor of a past or present administrator, faculty member, alumnus, friend of John Carroll or international or national leader. The facility houses 86 men and 80 women, half being freshmen. There are five resident assistants and one head resident. All rooms house two students and are 13 by 15 feet.

Director of Housing Jack Collins says that there are still a number of areas that are unfinished in the new facility. The basement and the lounge areas are still not completed. The washing machines and dryers along with the lounge furniture are expected to be delivered soon. The wardrobes for each room should be delivered before the weekend, Collins says.

There have been some complaints from the students living in the new dormitory. telephones in some rooms have not worked properly and the locks on room doors have been a screens on the windows, but roe Falls, business adminis-Collins says screens for the tration.

Saga off to fair start, Food throwers castigated

Most people were no doubt pleasantly surprised by the changes in the cafeteria. Of the changes, perhaps the most significant is the positive attitude of the new managers. Carroll students had become used to apparently uncaring managers who seemingly spent most of their time hiding from irate students.

Still, all is not perfect, and many are quick to predict that the situation will soon decay to its former depths. Such an attitude, though, is unfair. Saga should be given time to work out inherited problems.

The success of the move to upgrade the cafeteria depends for a large part on the participation and cooperation of the students. If Saga has to replace stolen tableware and hire workers to bus trays, they will have less money to spend on

More importantly, however, is the attitude of the people using the cafeteria. In the past the cafeteria was most often thought of as a zoo rather than a place to relax and enjoy food and friends. No doubt poor food quality contributed to this

There is no excuse, however, for people throwing food (or anything else) in the cafeteria. The intellectual infants who participate in the food wars display a high degree of selfishness and immaturity. These people would certainly not behave this way at home or in a restaurant.

Despite the popularity of National Lampoon's "Animal House," the antics of the characters in that movie would not generally be thought of as acceptable by most of the civilized world. After Saturday night's cafeteria disturbance, such things apparently, to our disappointment, do not go without

Saga is trying. Give them a chance. And for God's sake, grow up

Student representation To the Editor:

As Director of Student Representation for the Stu-dent Union, I feel that most Carroll students are unaware of their right to representation should they become involved in difficulties requiring appearances before campus disciplinary boards.

We are available to counsel students in regard to the sanctions which may be im-posed for violations and, if they wish to attend the hearing with them. The goal of this service is to provide the student with a better under-standing of the disciplinary process on campus, and to promote fairness in the proceedings. To this end, we will be glad to assist students who wish to appeal the decision of a hearing board.

We also maintain a referral service for students who become involved in problems requiring outside legal con-sultation. Representation may be obtained by calling the Student Union offices at 491-4230 or 932-7252.

A list of those members of the current representation committee will appear on bulletin boards soon. Please do not hesitate to make use of this service

Sincerely,

Additions uplift campus

by Judy Penz

As I wandered around the graceful surroundings of the Carroll campus, I noticed many additions that have enhanced our environment.

The most obvious addition is the new dorm. At first I was leery of having an addition of a dorm so close to the other dorms, but it does seem to fit in and adds a kind of coziness to the campus especially since the dorm is co-ed. I think it will help in easing some of the tensions of male-female relationships.

I'm also pleased with the changes occurring in the cafeteria. It finally appears to be relatively sanitary with efficiency at least attempted. Enough tables appear available, and the busing of our own trays isn't as demeaning as all of us thought it would

Being greeted with a view of Earth from the moon as I stepped into the commuter's lounge in the Science Building delighted me. I almost couldn't find the vending machines because of the white wall, separating them from the new chairs and tables. The atmosphere seems more friendly and studious maybe in view of the fact that the comfort of the commuters was not ignored.

Another turn for the better has occurred in the appearof Room One. transition has been remarkable. Always having a nice atmosphere, it is now inti-mate and comfortable with the lighting making the perfect setting for the Folk Festival and other future events.

With these alterations I feel that the student body's attitude has been uplifted and will help us to endure the semesters ahead of us.

Students heading for the SAC Building's Airport Lounge may find it more abandoned than usual, but these people should not be-come overly anxious about the effectiveness of their antiperspirant. The vacancy is the result of the remodeled Room One which has replaced the SAC area as the campus's main lounge.

Located north of the Snack Bar, Room One has added modular furniture, carpeting, Room One has added and a rewired lighting sys-tem. The total cost of the face-lift is in the neighborhood of $40,000.

Students' requests for better lounge facilities prompted the University's Space Relocation Board, headed by Dean DeCrane, to make the move. According to the Dean, several efforts to create a more viable Airport Lounge, such as furniture and wall partitions were ineffec-tive. He pointed to the loca-tion as the culprit for the failure.

The fate of the former Airport area is yet to be de-cided, but Plant Supervisor John Reali suggests the possibility that administrative offices in the SAC Building may be moved into this available space, creating expansion room on the second floor for student organizations.

Although Room One has a new function, it will still continue to provide small concerts for the student body. The first of these begins today, starting off Folk Week-

Folk Weekend held

by Dave Repicky

Room 1 Coffeehouse and Green Dragon Productions will present The First Annual Green Dragon Folk Weekend this Friday, Saturday and Sunday the 15th-17th.

Starting off the festivities Friday afternoon will be free entertainment by John Car-roll students. This will take place on the grass below the student union terrace (be-tween the Chapel and Mur-phy Hall). Friday night the setting switches to the newlyremodeled Room 1 (located in the SAC building adjacent to the snack bar). Performing will be Jeff Kapel and Jim Kozel. Kapel, who will play from 7-9, is an east-side talent whose voice reminds one of James Taylor. Jim Kozel will play from 9-12. Kozel is an accomplished musician with many fine compositions to his credit. Admission for Friday night will be $1.50 and $1.00 with a fee card.

Saturday's entertainment starts off with more free entertainment in the place and at the same time as Friday's. In case of rain the shows will take place in Room 1. Student performers include Denny Driscoll, John Romancic, John Wojicki, Tim Spayde, Rita Dollard and others. Saturday night everyone is in for a real treat as Michael Spiro returns to Room 1. Spiro is generally regarded as one of Cleveland's top acoustic performers. He has a successful debut album on Midas Records called "Listen to Me"; and is currently working on a second album. Michael will be playing songs from both of these albums, along with many others from his vast repertoire. Spiro really enjoys playing Room 1 and the audiences there enjoy him. This is one show that you don't want to miss. Michael will appear in Room 1 from 9-1. Admission will be $2.00 and $1.50 with a fee

Rounding out the weekend on Sunday night will be Hel-deberise. This is a West Side duo of considerable repute. The members perform both alone and together. The show will run from 8-11 and will be held in Room 1. Admission will be $1.50 and $1.00 with a

by Patrice Aylward

The John Carroll athletic department is operating under the direction of new athletic director, Ron Zwierlein.

Zwierlein, who replaces Dr. John Keshock, began his 4-year term on August 15 of this year.

He is a graduate of Bowling Green State University, where he also obtained his master's degree. He is cur-rently completing work on a doctoral degree from Ohio State University.

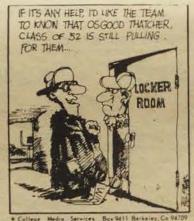

Zwierlein came to Carroll in 1975 as director of John-son Natatorium, as well as to serve as the swimming and diving coach.

Zwierlein brings to the department a new philosophy of administrating athletics. He stresses the concept of sound mind, sound body." "I'd like to see some image changes get rid of the stereotyped concept of physical education classes as pushovers, and athletes as 'typical dumb athletes'." At the same time, Zwierlein would like to "bring back achievement with the highest possible goals and elevate standards and capabilities of the ath-

Zweirlein would like to see the various coaches working together as a unit rather than nine separate departments. "A better working relation-ship will be for the benefit of the students," he stated.

Zwierlein is looking for a new thrust in intramurals as well. "The possibilities of more coeducational activities as well as individual sports will be investigated." He is looking to involve all the student body, not just the on-campus students.

Improved Streaks drop opener

by David J. Skrzypczak

The John Carroll Blue Streaks rallied for a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns but fell short in losing their opener, 24-21, to Capital University at Wasmer Field.

The Streaks got off on the right foot by scoring first on a two-yard run by Phil Lopez.

Key receptions preceeding the score were made by Keith Coljohn and Tom Cornell, both from quarterback John DuBroy.

But in the second quarter, Capital picked up two quick touchdowns, the second following a fumble on the kickoff return by Carroll. The Caps added 10 more points and held a 24-7 lead entering the fourth quarter.

The Blue Streaks began to rally. Led by Junior quarter-back, Kevin Hartman, the Streaks picked up a quick score on a six-yard run by Phil Lopez followed by Hartman-to-Cornell pass for the two-point conversion to pull to within nine points, 24-

The Streak defense, led by Kurt Klausner and Kevin O'Neill, held off the Caps for the entire quarter, allowing the offensive unit plenty of time to initiate a drive.

They finally connected when Hartman threw to Cornell for a 47-yard touchdown pass with 42 seconds remaining in the game. The PAT was no good, leaving the score 24-21. The ensuing onsides kick was recovered by Capital and they ran the clock out to preserve the victory.

Head Coach Don Stupica was very pleased with his team's performance in the fourth quarter.

"The team showed its character by the comeback. They were tired in the rising temperatures and showed a lot of poise."

Offensively, the Blue Streaks outdistanced the Caps in total yardage, 314-270. Lopez and Brian Niec led the running corps, each logging 61 yards. Hartman completed five of six for 102 yards, with Coljohn leading the receivers with five catches for 71 yards.

Tomorrow, the Streaks do battle against Buffalo State. The next home game is against Thiel on September

Cross Country

The JCU harriers, who last year came within one point of capturing the PAC crown, will open their season with a scrimmage at Baldwin Wallace tomorrow. Leading the Streaks will be returning All-American Greg Louis. Greg, a senior from Broadview Hts., Ohio, is a pre-med major.

Joining the team for the first time will be John Denney, Bill Jarrett, and Ed Fay.

Head Coach Joe Muscarella returns for his fourth season at the helm. Though it is too early to have an accurate indication of this team's chances, it must be remembered that it is essentially the same team that finished sec-ond in the conference championships to CWRU, by only one point. For those possibly interested in running this season, get in touch with Greg Louis at 491-5352.

Volleyballers Cheerleaders show depth

The Women's volleyball team will have depth this year, according to coach Kathleen Manning. Returning juniors include Mary Cum-mings, Roseanne Terry, Judi Hritz, Laura Norton, and cocaptain Anne Joly. Also returning is sophomore Lore Fietl, the MVP of the team last year.

But the depth really comes from the fine showing of new tryouts. Jo Anne Miller, Wanda Matthews, Chris Alt-man, Kim Laidley, Julie Maloney, and Chris Mitchell have all been impressive in practice.

The Streaks open their season on Sept. 28 against Oberlin and Ashland.
