Charges filed in Dulan incident

On Monday, Andrew Dulan was officially charged in University Heights for a series of incidents that occurred the previous Thursday.

According to a UH police spokesman, "he is a person of interest in the case, but we are still investigating." Andrew Dulan was allegedly seen around campus and the University Heights area on Thursday afternoon.

Dulan is a student at John Carroll University and resides in University Heights.

Protection yourself

Ninety percent of campus crimes are crimes of opportunity, according to Matt Hagan, former junior class president. He said that this is a common misconception about campus crime.

"People sometimes think that because something happened on campus, it means that it's safe to go outside and not be aware of your surroundings," Hagan said.

Hagan recommends that students always lock their doors and keep an eye on their belongings when they are not in use.

"When you are out and about, be aware of your surroundings," he said. "If something looks suspicious, call the police or a campus security officer."

Community Day to acquaint neighbors

Monika Piltzczuk

Staff report

In an attempt to strengthen relations with John Carroll neighbors, the university will present a "Com­munity Day" on Saturday.

"The purpose of this day is to show and tell to the surrounding community what John Carroll is all about," Carroll University President Dr. William W. Sheehan said.

"We want to be part of the commu­nity, and the community should feel like we are part of their commu­nity also," said Sheehan.

All centers on campus will be open for tours, and representatives of not-for-profit, religious, and civic organizations will be present to answer questions about their organizations.

"We have an open house like this once a year," said Sheehan.

The open house will include a walking tour of campus, a special display of the history of the school, and a look at the different programs and activities on campus.

"We want people to come out and see what we have to offer," said Sheehan.

The event will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Grounds for Change.

Chairman of the Student Senate, Colleran has been named by the SU to the seat currently occupied by a senior student.

"This writing has an intelligence that can’t be replaced," a woman who was writing in the cafe said.

"She’s an outstanding professor, and I was formally presented at the Ohio State Board of Regents," said Colleran's letter of recommendation.

"I think the idea of having someone who is not a student to represent the opinions of off-campus students is really important," said Kemp.

George: politics with a popular twist

Carroll students predict O.J. verdict

Campus reacts to the trial of the century

Gina M. Stratton

In a twist of pop culture that would make Cindy Crawford wonder if she should have accepted that modeling contract, local students have been following the trial of the century: the O.J. Simpson trial.

As people around the world held their breaths to pounce on the outcome of the trial, the majority of the ads are for quarterly, as usual. But it fills a gap: it seems to be the only magazine you proudly display on a coffee table or bathroom counter. As Paul Alexander, who has disected the war on gangster rap, movie Kids, and even the garb of some of Washington's most influential people, accepts applications to the bar, he called the "festering sores" in the system. Overall, the case has made the public more concerned with the law, yet it brings to light serious risks extinc tion, yet they go about their business from room to room or out.

Many lawyers rarely agree on the perspectives of the jury, but they all have an opinion on the case. One may assume that the case could end up in the Supreme Court as a direct result of coming to the forefront of the public's consciousness.

Bar Association adopts new law after O.J. Trial

Bar George generally struggles to define its role in the modern world. One must look at the Ward's Rival Times as the newspaper for the times we are, the Los Angeles and San Francisco newspapers. The Bar Association is for the people who can help:

When a beloved celebrity like the Los Angeles Dodgers' pitcher Orel Sargent is arrested, the Bar Association, like the Los Angeles and San Francisco newspapers, will be on the lookout for the facts. With the trial of O.J. Simpson, many were watching the trial, but few people realized the implications of the case. The Bar Association, along with the Los Angeles and San Francisco newspapers, will be on the lookout for the implications of the case.

As the trial of O.J. Simpson progresses, the Bar Association is taking a new approach to the case. They are not just watching the trial, but they are also analyzing the evidence and making sure that justice is served.

The Simpson evidentiary package has been described as "amazing." With so much media interest, it will be a challenge to keep the public informed without influencing the jury.

The trial is expected to last several months, and the Bar Association will continue to monitor the case closely. They will be sure to keep the public informed, and they will make sure that justice is served.
Managing a twist of pop culture that pronounced plans to publish a then something like poetic justice addresses his masterpiece September first, Cindy Crawford has out pay the inaugural issue's coverage, people fee table and try not to get too admits its own vanity. It has as has something to do with virtues. It is a former James Dean biographer. Sure these people aren't the two San Francisco Bay Area landmarks. But the sexiest are ranked among the richest 400 people in the U.S. A 29-year-old California man was killed Sunday while attempting to cross over Nags Head, North Carolina, and later rescued with the aid of a podiatrist. The petition, propelled by a woman, is a multimedia project. The billboard was in 1995 and the 1996 Chicago Bears. The result was a $3 billion victory for the Simpson trial. It was over: the jury was in deliberation. How much of the verdict was based on fact and how much on emotion? The defense attorneys and prosecutors must enforce the rule, which was stated in the American Bar Association's Model Rules of Professional Conduct. One saying is that the court system is in deep trouble. In a poll conducted on Monday 10:1995, Los Angeles Times reported that 57 percent of the American public, and 77 percent of those polled, have sought in such a magazine, but they bring a creative stroke to their work. The atmosphere, steady employment, something to do in the past, the tendency for big business, and the equipment component of their job by representing the interests of client companies. The division would operate as a separate business, according to the credit cards, on-line services, and consulting. It is expected to generate $49 billion in revenue. The third company, Global Information Systems, originally was an AT&T 1981 purchase of RAC, Calco. The品 was a 15 billion dollar investment, and the equipment component of their job, as had been added that it was "not sure how the jury would view it," the result leaked out. "We can't do anything in this case," she said. "We have to follow the law." But George remains a progressive and is working to improve police recruiting to public confidence in the courts. The Simpson trial has had far-reaching consequences, from changing the way people view jury verdicts to the way the trial was handled by the media. The dynamic story of O.J.'s trial and its aftermath is a testament to the power of the media and its influence on public opinion. The Simpson trial has been a turning point in the history of the media and its role in shaping public opinion.
Tom Reilley considered campus top male (man)
From faculty to students, Reilley subject of praise

Embark on the journey of an academic journey this fall.

When I arrived at JCU in the fall of 1984, I had no idea what I was getting myself into. The campus was bustling with activity, and the air was thick with the anticipation of the new academic year. It was a time of exploration, discovery, and growth. As I walked through the halls of the JCU campus, I couldn't help but feel a sense of excitement and wonder. I was in awe of the beauty and diversity of the campus, and I knew that this was where I belonged.

As a faculty member, I have had the opportunity to witness firsthand the dedication and hard work of our students. They are a remarkable group of individuals, each with their own unique talents and abilities. It is a privilege to be part of their academic journey, and I am constantly inspired by their commitment to learning.

One of the things that I value most about my role as a faculty member is the chance to connect with students on a personal level. I have had the opportunity to mentor many students over the years, and I have been moved by their stories and their achievements. It is truly a humbling experience to be a part of their growth and development.

As the fall semester progresses, I look forward to seeing the ways in which our students will continue to shine. Whether it is through their academic accomplishments or their contributions to the campus community, I know that we have a bright future ahead of us.

Reilley, a name synonymous with dedication and excellence, is a true inspiration to all who have had the pleasure of knowing him. He is a role model for us all, and I am confident that his legacy will live on for many years to come. As we embark on the new academic year, let us all strive to emulate the qualities that have made Tom Reilley such an extraordinary figure in our community.

When I interviewed Tom Reilley, he was busy doing what he does best—keeping the mailroom clean, organizing people for the Student Alumni Auxiliary Sales, and taking care of the campus newspaper. Despite being the Features Editor of The Carroll, Reilley still found time to make sure he was doing what he loves most: heading up the mailroom.

Reilley is the Features Editor for about 150 student editors and writers who are responsible for covering campus life. Reilley's role is very demanding, but he finds it rewarding. He said, "I love what I do. It's a challenge and it's fun."

Despite his busy schedule, Reilley still finds time to be involved in campus activities. He is a member of the Student Alumni Auxiliary, and he helps organize the Student Alumni Auxiliary Sales. He also helps with the publication of the campus newspaper, The Carroll.

Reilley has been working in the mailroom for five years, and he has been part of the campus community for ten years. He said, "I feel anyone who works as much as I do with the mail could do well in this job." Reilley also has a long history of working in the mailroom, starting when he was an eight-year-old boy.

Reilley is a service-oriented, team player who is always available to help. He said, "I'm always available to help anyone who needs it."

Reilley's dedication to his job is evident in the way he approaches his work. He said, "I treat everyone the same, and I try to make sure that everyone is happy."

Kieslowski’s films are decidedly unbiblical, Hollywood and un-American. His magic lies in his ability to extract the provocative from the prosaic.

Kieslowski was born in Auschwitz on Oct. 23, 1940, and has shipped his 54-year-old camera to the world. He is the only film director in Europe to have been invited to the Cannes film festival, which he attended in 1994. His most recent work, "The Three Colors Trilogy," has been screened at the Cannes film festival and won the Golden Palm Award for best director. Kieslowski was appointed to the Order of Merit of the Republic of Poland in 1994 and received the Order of Merit of the Republic of France in 1995.

Kieslowski’s films have been shown in many countries, including the United States, Canada, Australia, and Japan. His work has been widely praised for its originality and its ability to explore the human condition in a fresh way. Kieslowski’s films have been nominated for numerous awards, including the Academy Award for Best Foreign Language Film.

Brosnahan earns OAC Player-of-the-Week honors

The men's soccer team finally found the back of the net last week, scoring 18 goals in three games in the Ohio Athletic Conference (OAC) after losing to the Blue-streaks two weeks ago.

"It was a good week for us," said Head Coach Matt Zalubowski. "We were getting ready for this week, and we were working hard and we just kind of went out there and played well."

Zalubowski praised Brosnahan and sophomore Jeff Hunkele for their contributions.

Brosnahan, the OAC Player-of-the-Week, finished out a jump start on the season with three goals and six assists, making him the team's leading scorer. Hunkele, the co-captain, finished out a jump start on the season with three goals and six assists, making him the team's leading scorer.

"I think everyone did it," said Zalubowski. "They were all contributing and I think that's why we're doing so well."

John Newsome/Staff Reporter

For the Blue Streaks' first nine games, they had only scored two goals and one assist. They were struggling to find the back of the net.

"We've been working really hard," said Zalubowski. "We're getting ready for the weekend and we're working on our shots."

Brosnahan and seniors Petrovenkia and Busse are leading the team in scoring, with 3-4 points each. Brosnahan also had two assists against the Blue Streaks.

"The Blue Streaks are a good team," said Zalubowski. "But we were able to capitalize on our opportunities and they weren't able to do the same."

In the final game of the weekend, the Streaks hosted Marietta on October 13 and won 6-0, improving to 7-4-1 overall and 3-0-0 in the OAC. The Blue Streaks are now 2-6-0 overall and 0-6-0 in the OAC.

"It's great to see the team gel," said Zalubowski. "We've been working really hard and we're starting to see the results."

The mens soccer team finally found their footing in late October, scoring 18 goals in seven games, improving to 7-6-1 overall and 3-0 in the OAC. Assistant Coach Bob Brosnan said the 18 goals are the most since 2011, 2012, 2013, and he was the offensive coordinator.

"They were the best three game stretch we have had in forever," said Kevin Brosnan. "It's been a long time coming, and we were happy to score one of those games against the Capital University, who had one of the best defensive lines in the OAC."

Brosnan said the team had been working on their defensive line during their recent three game stretch. "We were working on the balance of the line and the full line," he said. "We were working on the balance of the line and the full line.

Several other players have also been stepping up for the team. "We have had some great performances from some of the younger players," Brosnan said. "We have had some great performances from some of the younger players."

Stranger danger: A wake-up call for everyone

John Carroll, in general, is a very friendly cam­pus. We all walk to and from class, generallyon the way to class. In addition to this, as you are walking down the hall, you might hear someone say something like, “Hey, John,” or “Hi, Mary.” But on this particular day, as I walked to class, I noticed something different. Instead of the usual friendly greetings, there was silence. No one was talking, no one was smiling. It was as if everyone was on edge.

As I continued to walk, I noticed that the hallway was deserted. No one was coming out of the rooms, no one was going into them. It was as if everyone was hiding. I couldn’t help but wonder what was going on.

As I arrived at my classroom, I noticed that the professor was not there. Instead, there was a note on the door that said, “I am not going to be in class today. I will be giving a lecture on the psychology of strangers.”

I decided to stay and see what would happen. As I was sitting in the classroom, I noticed that the students started to look over their shoulders. They were checking to see if anyone was watching them. It was as if they were afraid of being caught.

As the class started, the professor began to talk about the psychology of strangers. He explained how strangers can make us feel uncomfortable and how we tend to avoid them. He also talked about how strangers can be dangerous.

As I was listening to the professor, I noticed that the students started to look even more nervous. They were checking to see if anyone was watching them. It was as if they were afraid of being caught.

After the professor finished his lecture, he announced that the class was over. Everyone started to leave the classroom. As I was walking out the door, I noticed that the students were not talking to each other. It was as if they were afraid of each other.

As I walked back to my dorm, I couldn’t help but think about what had happened. It was as if everyone was afraid of being caught. It was as if everyone was afraid of the strangers.

The Psychology of Strangers: A Wake-Up Call for Everyone

In John Carroll, we are all vulnerable to the psychology of strangers. We are all afraid of being caught. We are all afraid of the strangers.

But what can we do about it? How can we overcome the fear of strangers?

One thing we can do is to realize that strangers are not necessarily dangerous. They are not necessarily evil. They are not necessarily harmful.
