The Birds and the Bees

Zachary Thomas
John Carroll University, zthomas18@jcu.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://collected.jcu.edu/jcr
Part of the Fiction Commons, Nonfiction Commons, and the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://collected.jcu.edu/jcr/vol71/iss1/23

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by the Student at Carroll Collected. It has been accepted for inclusion in The John Carroll Review by an authorized editor of Carroll Collected. For more information, please contact connell@jcu.edu.
THE BIRDS AND THE BEES
Zachary Thomas

Say Honey, can I be—your busy worker-bee
bein’ the only buzz
between me and the Queen?

If I’m bein’ honest:
your nectar tastes new 24/7 and fresh 365—
I’m responsible for the best honeycombs in your hive.

Oooh! What’s that?
That laugh—
  Belike I stung You.
That smile—
  Be bright swayin’ daisies.
That man—
  Beside You, belongs to who?

He ain’t worth the allergic reaction—
  but I am.

So who am I?

No one knows my real name,
but they all call me Come—
  at least, that’s what they wanted me to do.

I’ll be whoever you say, but right now—
I’m Your black and yellow winged mighty humble bumble becomin’ your Honey Nut Cheerio.

And—
if I’m bein’ true:
I’ll leave you like Bobby Brown left Whitney Hou—
  itchin’ for more pollination until you turn the omitted rhythmic color.
Was that a sneeze? ‘Cause God has already blessed you.

Listen Queen B—
fuck your man, I’m not worried about Jay-Z.

His sticky bear claws caught double-dippin’—
it’s Y—O—U whose vowels complement consonants, yet don’t equate physical substitutions.

So who am I?

No one knows my real name,
but they all call me Come—
at least, that’s what they wanted me to do.

Because I—Couldn’t Overcome
  Masculinity’s Ego.